SMELL THE FRANKINCENSE IN SALALAH THIS SPRING

AL BALEED RESORT SALALAH BY ANANTARA is inviting travellers to enjoy the start of spring in Oman with the official kick-off of frankincense season in the coastal town in the south of the country. Known as the perfume capital of Arabia, Salalah is renowned for its production of frankincense, a resin extracted from the Boswellia sacra tree. Quality is based on purity, aroma, age, shape and colour, and was worth more than gold in ancient times.

The luxury property, which burns frankincense in the lobby, has a Salalah Guru, Hussain Balhalf, who provides bespoke excursions to guests, and says that nearly on every tour is a request to see and buy frankincense. According to Balhalf, the most popular time to harvest frankincense starts in April through July when the monsoon season begins.

After a day out stocking up on products from local vendors and discovering the history of the “diamonds” of Oman, guests can retreat to Al Baleed Resort Salalah by Anantara where the frankincense experience continues with the resort’s signature Frankincense Ritual at the spa. This pampering 90-minute treatment features two specialists performing four-hand synchronised massage techniques while harnessing the natural healing benefits of frankincense, both aromatically and topically. Private guided frankincense tours with the Anantara Salalah Guru start from OMR 90 ($234). www.anantara.com

WELLNESS SOLUTION BY PANASONIC ON-BOARD ETIHAD AIRWAYS

UAE’S NATIONAL AIRLINE ETIHAD AIRWAYS and Panasonic Avionics Corporation have entered into a partnership to jointly develop and trial wellness solutions aimed at enhancing the traveller experience. As part of the partnership, Etihad will be the first airline to trial Panasonic’s new Jet Lag Adviser, which was developed in collaboration with Detalytics. The solution, which leverages artificial intelligence (AI), will be integrated into the airline’s passenger app. To help passengers combat jet lag, the Jet Lag Adviser takes a range of passenger inputs including chronotype, circadian rhythms, height, weight, the nature of travel, and travel information such as flight times, routes and zones and uses its artificial intelligence engine to produce personalised jet lag plans for passengers with tailored advisories to help them reduce jet lag. Throughout each phase of the travel experience, the Jet Lag Adviser will send reminders with recommended actions to passengers via the app. Panasonic is also exploring further wellness technologies with Etihad. www.etihad.com

THE KENTUCKY DERBY
Louisville, Kentucky, USA
“The Run for the Roses” is often described as the most exciting two minutes in sports. The Kentucky Derby is the first leg of the American Triple Crown, followed by the Preakness Stakes and the Belmont Stakes. Since the Kentucky Derby is considered the biggest race in the world, millions of people from around the world bet at various live tracks and online sportsbooks. As well as attracting a host of celebs each year from stage and screen, the derby also has regal appeal. As a direct descendent of England’s Epsom Derby, Churchill Downs’ Kentucky Derby has played host to British Royalty on four different occasions.

CHELSEA IN BLOOM

London, UK

Chelsea in Bloom is back – the world-class alternative floral art show that transforms Chelsea’s most iconic streets with breath-taking floral displays, announces this year’s theme of Under The Sea. Produced by Cadogan, in association with the Royal Horticultural Society, Chelsea in Bloom runs from the 20th-25th May and extends the Chelsea Flower Show out into the local neighbourhood. Over 60 shops, restaurants and hotels have already confirmed participation, from Sloane Street, Pavilion Road, Duke of York Square, and for the first year, the legendary King’s Road, to celebrate its re-launch in April 2019. Each participating partner will be invited to interpret the ‘Under the Sea’ theme in their own unique way, competing for the coveted award of ‘Best Floral Display’, and Sloane Square will once more become home to a stunning central installation and information point for the week, with the opportunity to book a free rickshaw ride or walking tour to take in some of the highlights. Over the years, the competition has become a fixture in the London summer cultural calendar, attracting audiences from around the globe.

MET GALA

New York, USA

If we’re being longwinded, the Costume Institute Gala at New York’s Metropolitan Museum of Art is the biggest event on the fashion fundraising calendar. However, if you refer to it as the ‘Met Gala’, we all know what to expect. Some of the hottest stars in music and film rub shoulders and grab headlines with show stopping outfits by renowned fashion designers, most of whom are in attendance also. Founded by publicist Eleanor Lambert, the benefit was first held in 1948 to encourage donations from New York’s high society. The night is centred on the theme of the new exhibition, Camp: Notes On Fashion. Previous themes included Heavenly Bodies: Fashion and the Catholic Imagination; Manus x Machina, Punk: Chaos to Couture; and China: Through the Looking Glass.

MASSERIA TORRE MAIZZA Puglia, Italy

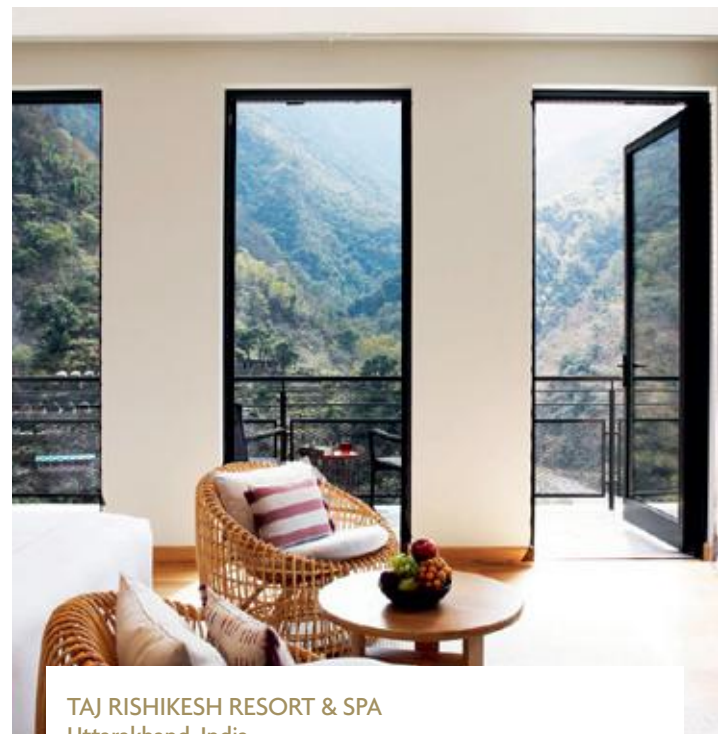

Set in the achingly quaint area of Savelleteri di Fasano, along the Adriatic coast and surrounded by ancient olive groves, Rocco Forte's Masseria Torre Maizza has opened in a farmhouse that dates back to the 16th century. An investment of over six million euros has brought the property back to its natural beauty. The resort now features 40 lavish suites all with stunning views of the Apulian countryside, including the addition of the magnificent two-bedroom Torre Suite, located on the top floor of the masseria's original tower. Guests have a variety of amenities to choose from while staying at the resort including a 20-metre pool, a nine-hole executive golf course, access to a private beach club, fitness centre and spa treatments at the Rocco Forte Spa.

COMO CASTELLO DEL NERO Tavarnelle Val di Pesa, Italy

An exceptional 740-acre estate in the Chianti wine region, Tuscany's COMO Castello Del Nero offers something a little atypical from most hotels. At the property's heart stands a 12th-century castle featuring 50 rooms and suites with new interiors. The Castello's historic terracotta flooring, fresco walls and vaulted ceilings remain untouched, alongside a lighter, more modern 'COMO' aesthetic, to complement and enhance the sense of history at the castello. The Michelin-starred La Torre is located in the original stables of the castle in the winter, transferring to the garden terrace in summer. The hotel also features two informal restaurants: La Taverna for traditional Tuscan fare; and during the summer months, the Pavilion, which offers Mediterranean-inspired cuisine and signature COMO dishes.

MAY Essentials

With ruby reds and vivid, refreshing greens, you won't know whether to stop or go with this month's collection of essential items. Why not take a trip to the Great Wall with Graff and celebrate love with Fabergé? Or simply colour your life with Chopard, Bvlgari and Van Cleef & Arpels

Compiled by: Anna Zhukov

JARDIN DE RUBIS

Rubies have fuelled Van Cleef & Arpels' imagination since 1906, inspiring some of its most emblematic creations. This Jardin de Rubis necklace with detachable clip dazzles in white and pink gold, with one huge cushion-cut ruby of 18.12 carats. Other rubies, and pink and white diamonds, also dance around the piece.

BACK TO THE WALL

The dial of the GryoGraff Great Wall of China has four layers, each in relief, starting with a background made of aventurine, creating the look of a starry sky. The second forms the towers and walls, made from a hand-engraved gold mount. The watch continues Graff's tradition of showcasing some of the world's most intricate métiers d'art techniques.

SIMPLY COMPLICATED

Complications, precision and inspiration. Keith W. Strandberg casts a watchful eye over the latest timepiece trends

You would think that today's world is complicated enough, but in watches, complications are a good thing. A complication is defined as any feature of a watch that goes above and beyond telling the time. Even a date is a complication, though not something particularly difficult.

It's when complications get difficult that things really get interesting in the watch world...and more expensive. Some of the most complicated watches can take up to a year or more for a master watchmaker to assemble, and that doesn't account for the time it takes to design and manufacture all the parts. Often, a highly complicated watch has more than 600 separate parts, and some have over 1,000.

Here are some of the most popular complications available today:

DUAL TIME/GMT/TRAVEL TIME:

This timepiece displays two time zones simultaneously, either through a GMT hand that points to the second time zone or a separate subdial for the second time zone. There are some three-time-zone watches and some brands offer world-time watches, which provide a way to read the time in 24 time zones around the world (and some even include the time zones offset by 15 or 30 minutes).

CHRONOGRAPH: This is a watch that allows for the independent timing of an event. Usually, a chronograph has two pushers on the side of the case to start, stop and return the chronograph hand. Most chronographs have subdials that measure the minutes and hours. There are chronographs that have only one pusher, which controls all the chronograph functions, and these are called monopusher chronographs. A chronometer, not to be confused with a chronograph, is a watch certified to an official precision standard.

REGULATOR: This is a watch that emphasizes the minute hand, as it was the kind of clock used in watchmaking workshops. The watchmakers "regulated" the clocks and watches they were working on to the time displayed on this clock.

SPLIT SECOND CHRONOGRAPH: This chronograph has two chronograph hands instead of one, which split apart, allowing you to time different things. The French term for this complication is rattrapante, which means "recovering" or "catching again."

ANNUAL CALENDAR: This watch will run for a full year (starting on March 1) without having to be reset. It will have to be reset at the end of February, the only month that varies in the number of days from year to year.

PERPETUAL CALENDAR: The ultimate calendar because it knows how long each year is, no matter if it is a leap year. Keep a quality perpetual calendar running and you won't have to reset it until the year 2100.

This spread, clockwise from above: The Jacob & Co. Astronomia Casino; the Franck Muller Vantage Crazy Hours; the Blancpain Villeret Perpetual Calendar; the Patek Philippe Ref. 5172G.

POWER RESERVE/RÉSERVE DE MARCHE:

This complication is an indicator somewhere on the watch (usually on the dial) that shows how much power is left in your mechanical timepiece.

MOON PHASE: These watches have a display that shows the phase of the moon.

RETROGRADE DISPLAY: This kind of display counts up (whether it is seconds, minutes, the date, etc.) then snaps back to zero.

JUMPING HOUR: Instead of regular hands, a single digit shows the hour and it jumps directly to the next hour, from three to four, for example.

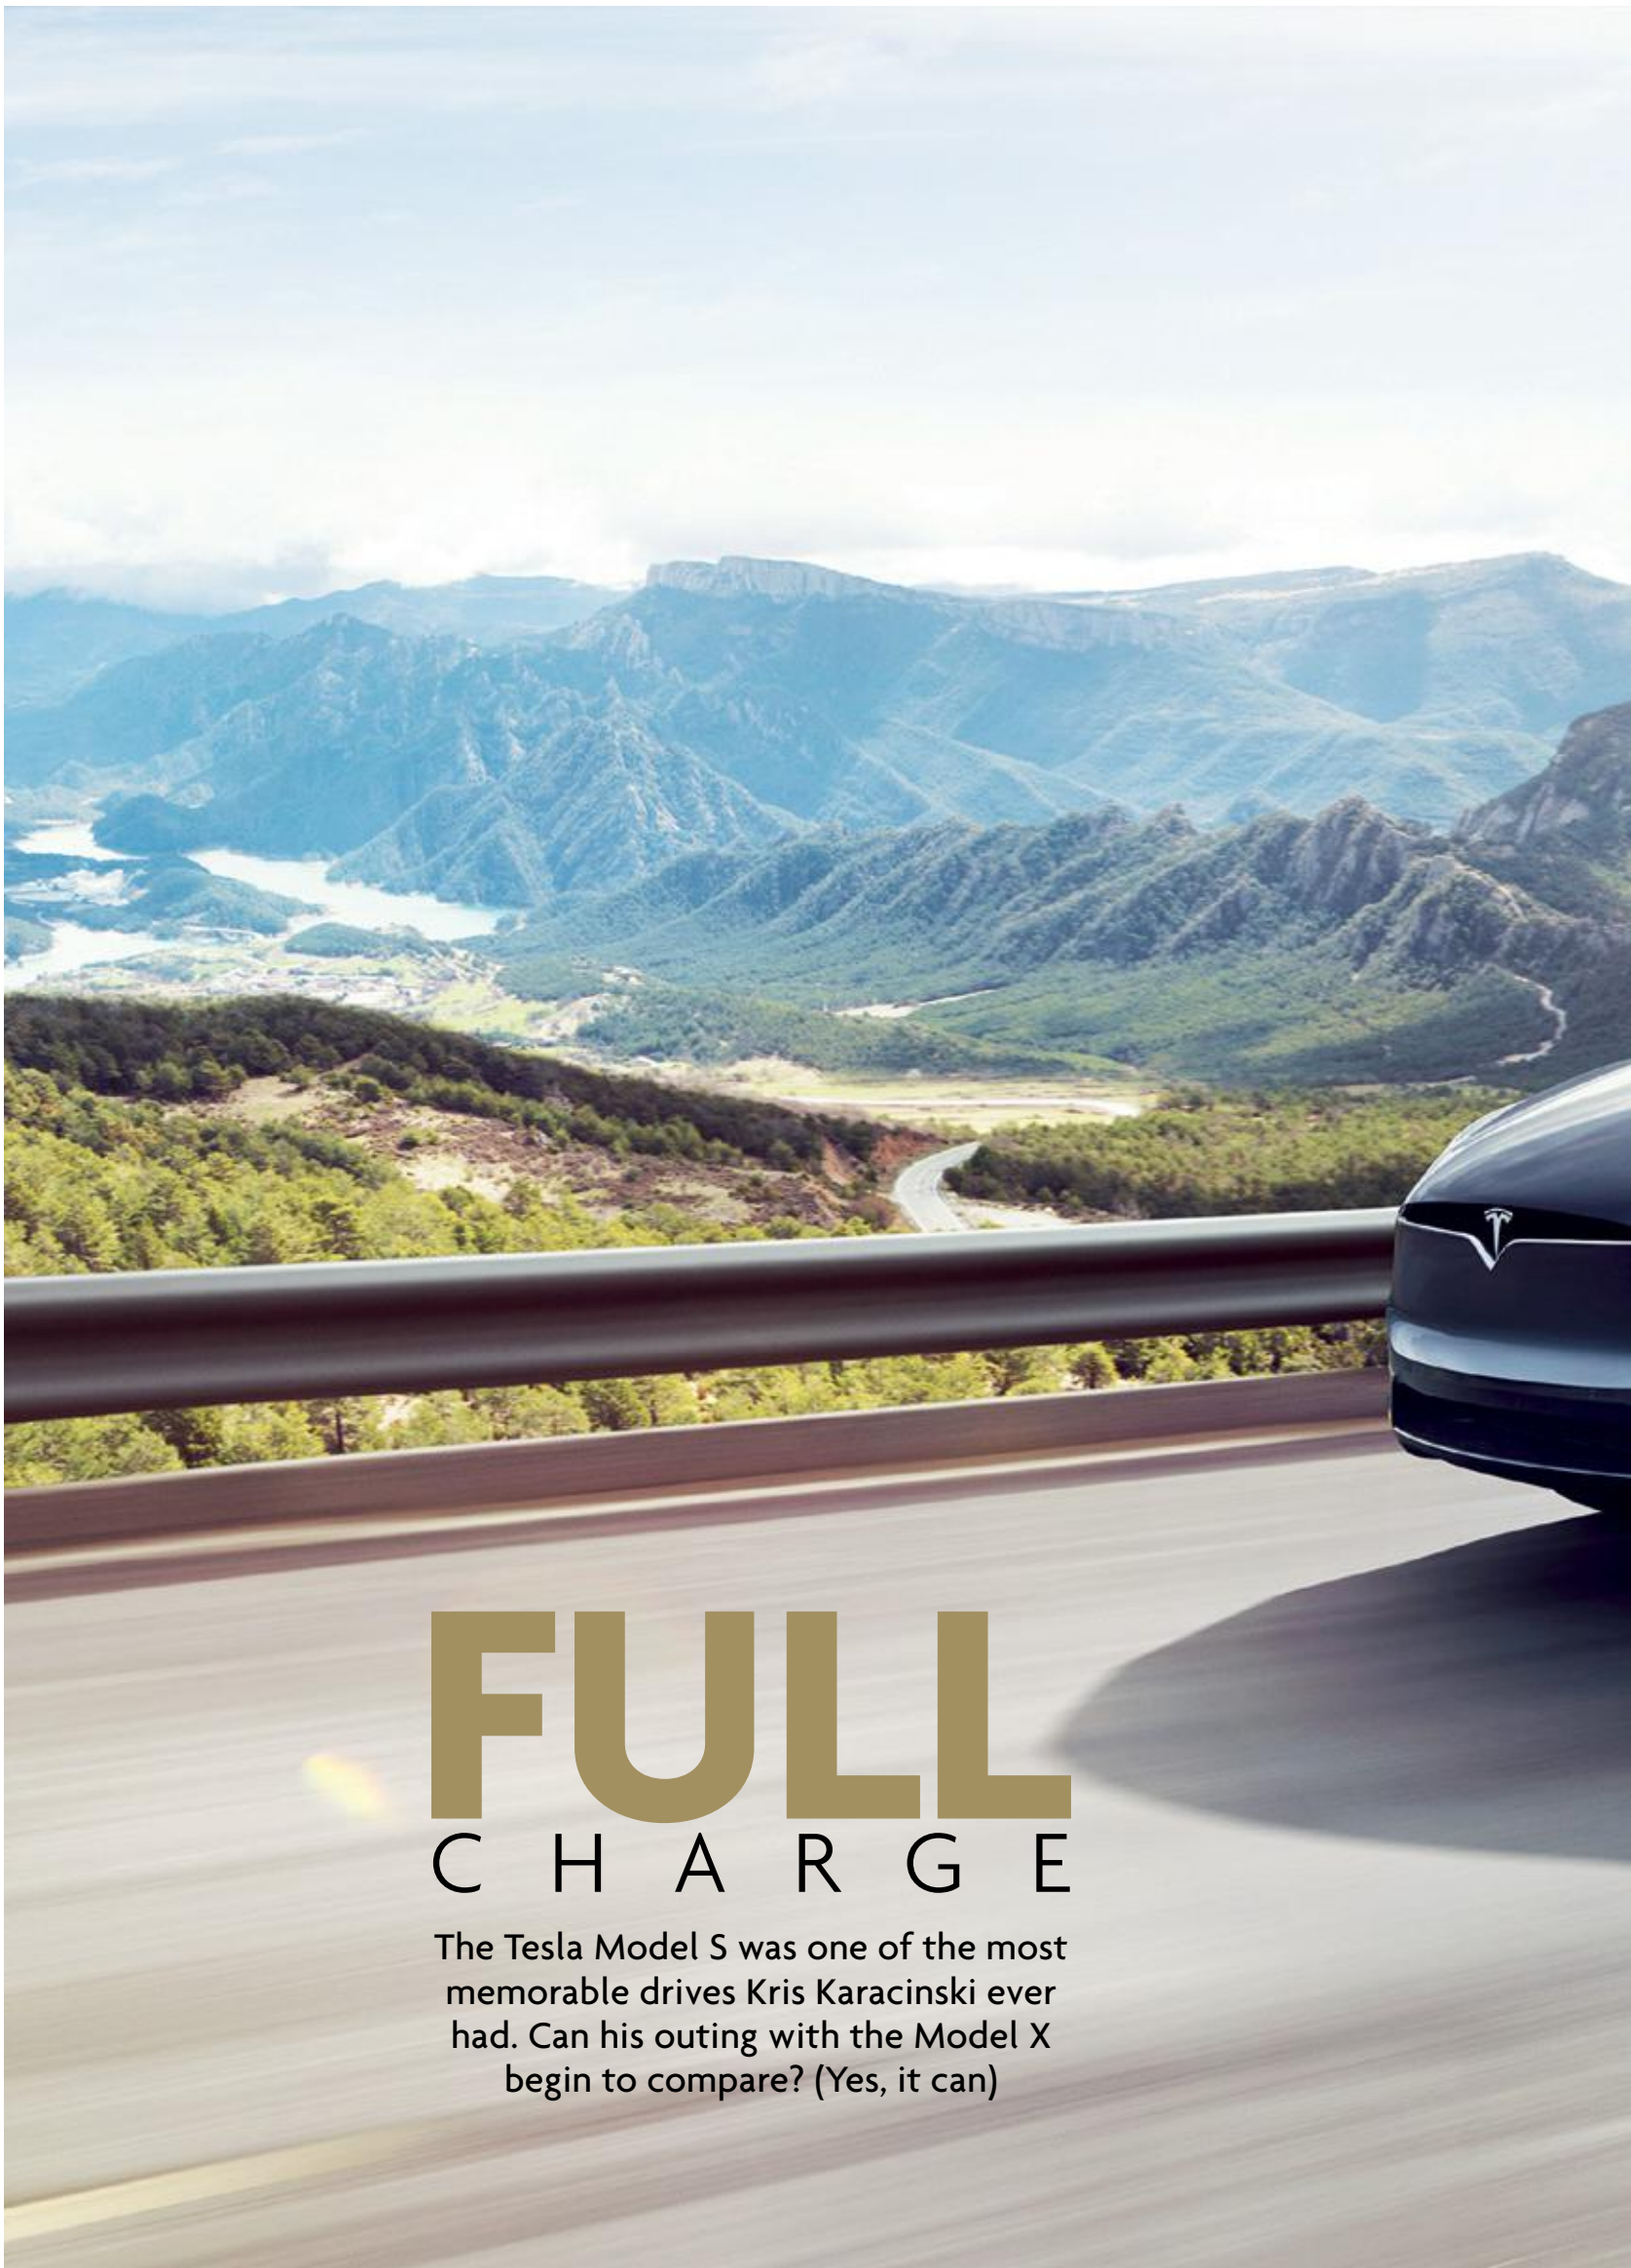

MINUTE REPEATER: This is a watch that chimes out the time (hours, quarter-hours and minutes) when a lever is activated. The minute repeater is considered one of the most complicated watches to manufacture.

TOURBILLON: A tourbillon is a complication designed to counteract the effect of gravity on the movement's balance, thereby safeguarding the movement's accuracy. The tourbillon features a cage that holds the balance and the escapement, and the cage turns independently of the watch, usually at a constant rate of once per minute. The tourbillon, which means "whirlwind" in French, is one of the watchmaking art's most involved and elegant complications.

GRANDE COMPLICATION: This rare watch combines at least three high complications — usually one from each of the following groups: chronograph, calendar/moon phase and striking, and often includes a tourbillon.

Producing a watch with any complication, or combination of complications, takes a great deal of expertise, amazing attention to detail and know-how. In general, when a complication is added to a movement, it means that more can potentially go wrong, so it is important to purchase a complicated watch from a quality company.

SeaDream unveils the all-inclusive, all-suite 'Innovation' with a maiden 70-day expedition from London to Antarctica

IT'S NEVER BEEN THIS EASY, nor comfortable, to uncover the frosty vistas of Antarctica. SeaDream can now help you tick off the elusive continent with its new ship, Innovation, which holds 220 passengers in 110 boutique luxury suites, with a one-to-one guest-crew ratio.

The inaugural voyage is slated for September 2021, taking passengers on a 70-day trip from London to Antarctica. An even more intriguing itinerary leaves Ushuaia, Argentina, in February 2022, bringing guests down to the southernmost continent for a sighting of emperor penguins before moving all the way up to Longyearbyen, Norway, to search for polar bears.

The expedition takes nearly three months and includes several stops along South America's east coast, a couple of ports in Africa, and numerous sojourns in the western half of Europe. The megayacht will sail to all seven continents in its first season, visiting over 200 ports in 49 countries.

Aboard the nine-deck ship you'll find three marinas; one for swimming in an in-ocean pool, another for non-motorised watersports such as kayaks and sailboats, and the third for mechanised equipment such as wave runners. There's an indoor restaurant onboard but most meals will be served alfresco. And if you find yourself wanting some fresh air, more than 40 guests can book one of the outdoor Balinese beds and sleep under the stars.
